Neither Santa Monica or Pacific Palisades has a formal police department. Instead, most of the action occurs on the street. A patrol car will respond to a call, or a call will come in and an officer with the appropriate training will respond. The following list contains all the reports of significant incidents for the week ending December 21, 2019. A "No Parking" sign, was put on the south edge of Santa Monica's beach due to a storm debris cleaning contractor being on the beach. There are areas where a permit is required to clean or dump debris and these areas are delineated on the No Parking sign to not confuse the contractor with the markers. A woman said that she was walking to the beach and was approached by a jogger that felt she might have been using the beach in a sketchy manner. The man approached and told her she was trespassing on a private beach. She said she was not trespassing because she had a permit. The jogger insisted on her leaving the beach. The woman was grateful that the jogger did not remove her. A woman said a dog in the area was barking and she was approached by a man who felt the dog was harassing him. The man said he was scared by the dog barking and

There was a concern that he was mentally ill. The police were contacted and requested. A man was in the middle of the boardwalk, was harassing people and throwing around his fists and saying "no police." He was being verbally confrontational with the police and being screamed at by the bystanders. He became aggressive with the police and resisted. He was eventually handcuffed and taken into custody. A female was in a dispute with her boyfriend. What's New In Photoshop CS5?

Q: WCF - ServiceReference with infinite depth web.config causes 404 I'm working on getting a new MS SQL 2005 project set up to use WCF. It was originally set up using the old style model of having a Service.svc. The only issue I'm running into is when I reference a ServiceReference in my program I get a 404 error. Here's a sample: //

    ServiceHost myServiceHost = new ServiceHost(typeof(MyService), new Uri(ConfigurationManager.AppSettings["ServiceUrl"])); myServiceHost.Open();

Application.Run(); } // // Following
